
Sender acceptance requires strict topic identification. The receiver uses the shared identification setting independently of the writer setting.